I would like to ask one more question please regarding my second petition. My patent application was submitted by my attorney as a "parent patent" subordinate application. The first application was no (09/477,951) attorney docket No (1.761.990). The second application was no. (09/490,859), attorney docket No. (1.827.99). Do I need to submit two separate sets of petitions for each, or are they treated as one patent, or do I have the option of choosing one or the other? I await PTO's reply.

Sincerely W. Joe Mikulski

I have received the response from PTO dismissing my petition to reinstate my patent application. PTO states that I may petition for unintentional abandonment. This is the route I wish to take. Unfortunately I am only a technician. Could someone please explain briefly in layman's terms what "large entity and small entity" refers to? Also, since I have already submitted a check for $640. With my previous petition, must I re-submit a new check for another $640? I would appreciate a prompt response, since I have only been granted two months to submit this petition. I am constantly away on assignments to remote areas.

PTO has stated that "petitioner is expected to treat the prosecution of the patent as his most important business and there are few circumstances that would mitigate petitioners failure to a timely response to an office action." I have in my first petition made it clear what my responsibilities are as an employee for the US government. IT states in my official job description "Employee is required to travel, usually with little or no notice, throughout Eastern Europe, the Middle East, and West Africa in areas where political instability and civil unrest are common". How can the patent be the most important business in my life? I have a duty to the Department of state here and to my country. Despite these duties I have made many attempts by telephone, E-mails, and correspondence, to reach PTO regarding my problem, (as I have shown in my previous petition). It was the PTO who never submitted timely and proper response to my inquiries. I am completely disappointed and dissatisfied that PTO will not recognize my situation here as being "one of the circumstances that would mitigate failure to file a timely reply". It is plain to me to however; that life as well as the US Government is not always fair and there is not a damned thing I can do about it. If the PTO will just quickly respond to my questions I will be great full. I am due next week in Ashgabad Turkmenistan for a long installation job.

Sincerely W. Joe Mikulski
